Perry the Polar Bear

Perry the Polar Bear was starving. He had just woken up from a long winter's hibernation. He was ready to go hunt and find some fish to eat. Perry headed to find an ice hole. Usually, Perry searched for a hole to dive into until he could catch a fish.

He started his journey by using his nose to lead the way. He could smell the fish under the deep layer of ice, but he just couldn't find any holes in the snow or ice. Finally, Perry found the edge of the snow, but the water had frozen over. He went to bite the fish that was swimming at the top of the water, but when he went to bite the fish, he hit ice. The layer of ice was so clear, he didn't even see it!

Polar Bears

Polar bears are very large bears that live in very cold areas of the world. They have thick, white fur that helps keep them warm in their cold habitats. Polar bears have big, thick paws that also help them stay warm when they walk on the snow and ice.

A male polar bear can weigh over one thousand pounds. Females weigh only about half of that weight, but they are still very large animals. Polar bears are dangerous animals because they are very good at hunting. They eat other animals from the Arctic area. One thing that makes a polar bear such a great hunter is its great sense of smell.
